

Corporate Governance

Casio recognizes that quick decision-making and appropriate execution of business operations are vital. Not only these capacities are needed, however, strengthening of oversight to improve management soundness and transparency is equally important in ensuring that business goals are reliably achieved and corporate value continues to grow.

Corporate governance framework

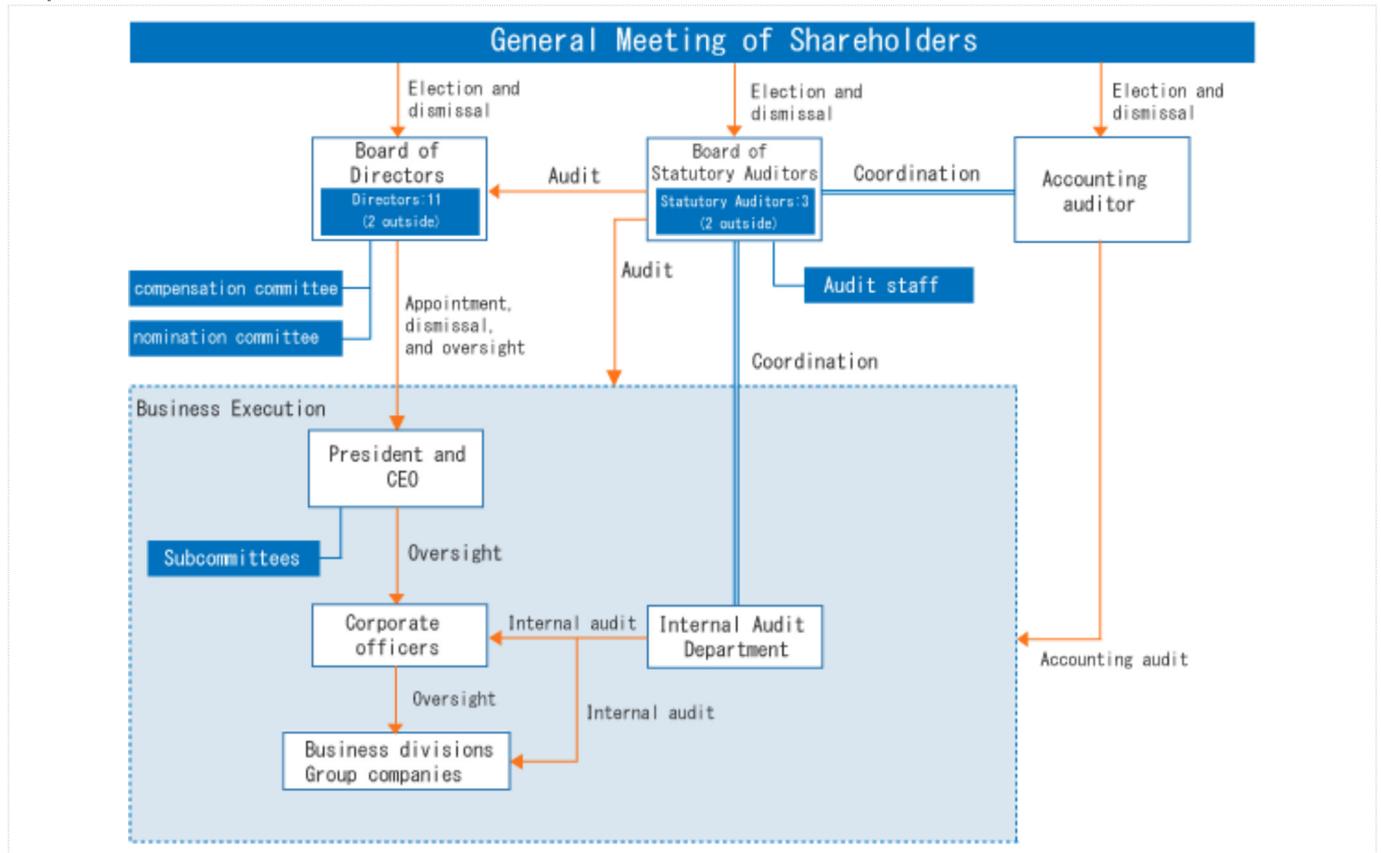

Casio is a company with a board of statutory auditors. In addition to the management oversight function of the board of directors and board of statutory auditors, Casio is working to further strengthen its corporate governance by expanding the role of outside directors and enhancing the executive officer system.

The board of directors has delegated most of its authority relating to important business execution to the executive officers to enable fast and efficient business execution. However, the supervisory function of the board of directors has been substantially secured through its retained authority to pass resolutions on matters set forth in law and in the articles of incorporation, and on particularly important business execution matters. Also, as part of efforts to strengthen the management oversight function of the board of directors, a nomination committee and compensation committee have been established with the requirement that outside directors serve among their members. To ensure the effectiveness of its management oversight function, the membership of the board of directors must include people with diverse perspectives, experiences, and abilities. In addition to directors who are thoroughly familiar with Casio's business, the board must also include outside directors with broad insight and rich experience. As of June 30, 2015, the board of directors is composed of 10 directors, two of whom are outside directors. The term of office for directors is one year so as to clearly delineate the responsibility that they have for management and to facilitate quick responses to changes in the business environment.

In order to ensure the soundness and transparency of business management, the statutory auditors perform rigorous audits by attending board of directors meetings, and other important meetings and committees, as well as by interviewing directors and others and reviewing reports and important resolution documents. This is done in accordance with audit policies and allocation of responsibilities set out by the board of statutory auditors. The audit function is also being further strengthened through the provision of full-time staff to support the statutory auditors, in addition to the gathering of information from and exchange of opinions with the outside directors as necessary. More than half of the members of the board of statutory auditors are required to be outside auditors, and they must include auditors with finance and accounting knowledge to strengthen the audit function. The current board of statutory auditors is composed of three members, two of whom are outside auditors. The outside directors and outside auditors are independent officers registered with the Tokyo Stock Exchange in compliance with regulations.

Accounting auditors perform external audits according to generally accepted Japanese auditing standards. The Internal Audit Department carries out audits to ensure that the organizations are appropriately operating in compliance with laws and regulations as well as group-wide standards.
